

1981 FEAST OF TABERNACLES TO BE LARGEST CONVENTION ON EARTH

By Herbert W. Armstrong
The largest convention, festival or assembly held on earth this year will be the Worldwide Church of God Feast of Tabernacles this coming Oct. 13 to 20.

In this world of gloom, unhappiness, suffering, frustration and despair, there will be 84 Feast sites worldwide where spontaneous HAPPINESS, JOY, good fellowship with brethren and with God and with Christ will fill thankful and grateful hearts!

We live in a discouraged, sorrowful world full of evils. O sure, people seek entertainment, excitement — they even seem to enjoy VIOLENCE as long as they are watching and not being hurt by it.

A few days or nights ago I was watching what appeared to be national championship girls' basketball game between two universities. They played like men. They were "up" for it, excited — BUT WITH SAD AND UNHAPPY EXPRESSIONS ON THEIR FACES. At the end the victors hugged and jumped up and down — but the defeated wept and cried. It was the ecstasy of winning for one group, but they enjoyed that empty ecstasy at the cost of AGONY suffered by the girls who LOST!

But at God's Festival NO ONE WILL LOSE. None will be suffering the AGONY of defeat. But all whose hearts and minds are right with God will be spiritually refreshed, uplifted, inspired, filled with joyous anticipation, enjoying a real FEAST on the SPIRITUAL WORD OF GOD!

Think how important this Festival is! After the return of King of Kings Jesus Christ, "It shall come to pass, that every one... shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles" (Zechariah 14:16). And there shall be plagues and severe punishments on nations that neglect or refuse to attend! People will be compelled to be happy! Of course, that is speaking of mortal people then left alive — not of Christ's saints who then will be immortal and in the very Family of God.

But you and I are, now, still mortal — and the above scripture shows us how very serious in God's eyes it is that we attend this wonderful Feast this year. For we may be attending it as immortal-born children of God before this present decade is out! That certainly is a likely possibility.

We have undoubtedly entered the most explosive decade in the history of man. But it is possible that God will cut short the days of great tribulation ahead and bring us into the wonderful and glorious Kingdom of God before this decade is out. Again, remember, Jesus said no man will know the day or the hour. But He did say we may know by world events when it is near — even at the door!

This will be my 55th year of keeping the annual Fall Holy Days. We did not come to realize the meaning and need to keep the entire Feast of Tabernacles until 1945, though my wife and I began keeping the annual Sabbaths in 1927.

The Feast of Tabernacles pictures to us year after year the glorious thousand years just shortly ahead now of world peace, happiness and opportunity for eternal salvation for all not previously called! It will be a world without Satan! It will be a world with Jesus Christ ruling with love!

It is a time for us to get away from the dreary routine of daily life in Satan's world and enjoy eight wonderful days with brethren in Christ and their families! It is the only time in the year that God provides a time when we may get away and rest from our daily regular duties — to be with brethren in Christ to worship Him and look forward to His utopia!

This year we shall have 22 Festival sites in the United States and Canada (see map, this page).

Brethren, as God shows us the importance of attending this Feast, it is equally important that all shall have been saving the second tithes to pay your own expenses and enjoyment at the Festival. Of course, part of that expense is rental of auditoriums or halls or convention centers and other expenses the Church must pay. So, as always, be sure to send in a tithes of your entire year's second tithes by return mail. Mark or list it separate from your regular first tithes or offering.

And please do not forget the building fund. Although we did have 100 percent financing on the Auditorium and other headquarters buildings, that came in the form of large multimillion-dollar loans from major insurance companies. Of course, much of the campus property is all paid out now, but payments are still having to be made month by month on the Auditorium, Hall of Administration, etc. So remember the special building fund, please. Remember we have been able to use and enjoy these fine buildings for a number of years before we have had to pay out these mortgages by which they were financed.

PROPOSAL OF AN ARMSTRONG PEACE FOUNDATION

By Herbert W. Armstrong
A 22-page typed proposal has been submitted to me, as a preliminary outline for a more in-depth study suggesting the organization of an "Armstrong Peace Foundation." The proposal was written and submitted by Mr. Stanley R. Rader.

Mr. Rader's expertise and assistance to me and to the Work have been, of course, in the supportive, nonspiritual areas of accounting, computerized data processing, finance, law, contacts with heads of this world's governments in being knowledgeable in world political and economic conditions.

This proposal envisions a new worldwide organization that could run into a considerable magnitude. Its purpose: to reorient the coming generations of the nature of the world's problems, and to provide a more workable solution to those problems than the world so far has accomplished.

Even though this is a preliminary, sketchy summary of the proposal, it reflects much thought and brilliancy of mind. I have felt I should share this suggestion from Mr. Rader with God's people at this point. To proceed would entail embarking on a momentous and costly program.

I will say, however, that I should not want to appear to glorify myself by naming it after me. There have, as you know, been many attempts of men, sincere and well meaning, to bring about world peace. All have failed utterly. Perhaps this Peace Foundation might do better than the Kellogg Peace Treaty, Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations or the United Nations. But should we not ask:

"Is this GOD'S SOLUTION to world troubles and world war? Is this what the living Christ wants us — His people — to do?" It is well written in scholarly language. Read it and see what YOU think. The proposal follows:

Dear Mr. Armstrong:

Preparatory notes to a feasibility study for an ARMSTRONG PEACE FOUNDATION to reorient the coming generation of the nature of the world's problems.

Introductory background
The world crisis

Throughout the industrialized Western world, more and more people have abandoned hope in ordinary, stopgap solutions to wars, violence, economic chaos — the symptoms of a condition no one seems able any longer to diagnose correctly, much less treat. Confused, they recognize that present remedies have not worked, that more short-term solutions are not enough and that a new understanding is desperately needed in a time of mounting disaster.

Many suspect the present situation, worsening each year, is a reflection of modern man's innermost condition, and of his present-day attitudes. Acquisitiveness runs riot, pitting each man competitively against his fellows and prompting nations to rape the legacy of nature mankind is meant to hold in trust. Rights without responsibilities are demanded everywhere; man's great potential to give of and from himself fails to be fostered; the sense that we are part of a human family within a fellowship with nature has become lost.

Our young have been placed in the charge of social engineers attracted by novel experimentation in education; guidance for life, and for the development of the whole person, has been abandoned in favor of implantation of information in ever-increasing quantities.

Nationalism and particularism increase; society fragments into self-obsessed units, which periodically coalesce into power blocs only for reasons of advantage. The sense of common responsibility and of communion that briefly united the "Atlantic community" after the war is virtually nonexistent; even the historic "special relationship" between the United States and Britain has become little more than a trite phrase. The rising generation of world leaders hardly know each other; ties of fellowship are sundered, and increasingly nations, communities and men "go it alone," suspiciously regarding others as "aliens."

The root causes remain unknown or at best unacknowledged; fundamental solutions that conflict with secularist views are ignored and denigrated.

The challenge

For all the reasons sketchily enumerated above, I believe an "Armstrong Peace Foundation" has an historic opportunity to play a major role in the reorientation of humanity toward a new understanding of the causes of the world's problems.

I believe this for the following reasons: The Church has rightly focused on the family, the nuclear unit from which all society springs.

The Church has sought to guide the family toward an understanding of the fundamental principles on which a right world order must rest; through the unprecedented travels of Mr. Herbert W. Armstrong, it has boldly sought to convince world leaders everywhere of the necessity for such right guidance. Thus, the Church has let its influence be felt both from above and from below; it is this continued influence, in these two directions, that I believe an Armstrong Peace Foundation could exert with great benefit to humanity.

I believe there is a need for this particular foundation because the AICF [Ambassador International Cultural Foundation] addresses itself to somewhat different spheres; the two foundations, I envisage, would support, complement and supplement each other's efforts wherever possible, but retain their special identities.

The Armstrong Peace Foundation would, if Mr. Herbert W. Armstrong permitted it, quite properly and fittingly recognize in its name the unremitting contributions to world peace that he has made over so many years.

Fields of activity

In order to further its goal of reorientating humanity toward a new understanding of world problems, the Armstrong Peace Foundation could:

- Provide a forum for the dissemination of right understanding by means of conferences, seminars, symposia and other meetings, at all levels, from the family level to that of society's leaders in all walks of life.

- Encourage the publication of relevant studies and papers, aimed at different groups, which assist the work of reorientation.

- Permit media publicity to be given to foundation views and statements on issues relating to society, nations and the world as a whole.

- Produce new educational materials at all desired levels, from the family on outward.

- Provide centers for meetings held under foundation auspices, which in themselves would become factors for bringing people together in friendship, fellowship and common purpose.

The scope of the work of the foundation would seem to be limitless, because the reorientation needed affects all areas of life; clearly, therefore, it needs

And the interest we are paying is the rate that was in effect before we built — now some years ago — and much lower than now!

What a blessing from God that we have not had to borrow regularly at the banks during all the last two years and so far this year. Formerly we had to borrow a million dollars in January and pay back out of Passover special offerings. Then we had to borrow another million in July to be paid back from the Fall Festival offerings. Loan rates to largest bank customers have gone over 20 percent! What a blessing we have not had to pay that last year or so far this!

Nothing will be sold at the Feast sites with the exception of the Ambassador College En-voy.

to be prudently restrained, and its results maximized creatively.

This, I believe, can be done by imaginative and efficient use of modern communications, and of the tools of the professional communicator; the impact of every foundation activity must be as great as possible, both for the sake of the message and for the sake of increasing the credibility of the foundation itself.

I envisage the foundation as initially concentrating its energies in fields that promise the richest rewards, then allowing the scope of foundation activity to grow organically as new areas are explored and found useful.

There will be a special issue of The Good News for the Feast instead of the past brochures. I have never liked the commercial advertising in the Feast brochures, and we will handle it all through a special Good News for this Feast again this year. The Feast is back on the track now, as well as the Church, the college and all our activities.

Instructions for making your housing arrangements are included in time in your Feast information material. U.S. and Canadian brethren will receive this information in a special supplement to this edition of The Worldwide News.

I wish you all the best wishes for a solemn Passover and a joyous Festival of Unleavened Bread.

With much love, in Jesus' name,

Cooperative ventures with other organizations can be undertaken whenever and wherever found desirable; more will be said about this presently, with particular regard to the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Because the list of the world's problems is endless, due care needs to be taken that the foundation addresses itself to no more than a few at the start. Such a beginning would, moreover, provide it with a probationary, experimental period in which approaches are tested in the light of experience.

Purely for discussion, I shall outline an exploratory theme to which the foundation might address itself, which allows me to describe the foundation's possible work in greater detail.

At the family level: the theme of "Values & Violence."

This theme would explore what values are being — and what ought to be — inculcated within the home; what separate roles fathers, mothers and children can fruitfully be encouraged to perform; what part materialism and acquisitiveness plays in fostering violence; how harmony can be encouraged and achieved; and the place of the family within the larger community of man.

I have offered this theme only as an example; many others can be developed, and some may prove of greater interest. But this theme allows me to describe some of the ways in which the foundation would be active and provides an overview that might prove helpful.

Foundation activities

A. Basic Research: To determine the facts about how children are or are not being educated for life and for the development of the whole person's individual potential, small research teams could be established in the U.S.A., Britain (for the U.K. and British Commonwealth), in Continental Europe and perhaps elsewhere, to provide Armstrong Peace Foundation Studies. The foundation would oversee this research, and the studies would become its property.

Imaginative publicity would bring the results to the attention (See PROPOSAL, page 8)

Just one more thing

By Dexter H. Faulkner

"Daddy, will you play with me?" A simple request — probably one that all fathers have heard. It seems, however, that this seemingly small request always comes just when Dad walks in the front door, exhausted after a hard day's work or when he has turned on the evening news.

The response, of course, is usually a weary, "Not now, I'm too tired." Or, "Keep quiet, can't you see I'm watching the news?" or the all-time favorite put-off, "In a minute, son."

More often than not, the father's response reflects little more than a stall, a tactic unconsciously employed in hopes that his child will soon become occupied with some other interest.

The words of Harry Chapin's ballad, "Cat's in the Cradle," come to mind. The ballad depicts the life experiences of a man whose father was always too busy to spend time with him. But he loved and worshiped his father and always promised that, as the song says, he would be "just like you Dad — gonna be just like you."

Inevitably he does become the kind of "too-busy" father that his own father had been, and ultimately, as he becomes a grandfather and is neglected by his own son, he realizes that his life has been one of unfulfilled, unrewarding relationships between fathers and sons.

This song, though somewhat popular, never did become a best-selling record. It seems songs with a message seldom make it to the top — people are too concerned with rhythm to give much thought to message. Yet, for fathers who care, there is probably no song that carries a greater message.

Much has been written recently about the influence television has on children. I have come to realize children are inclined to learn from television (good or bad) because it's never too busy to talk to them. It never brushes them aside while it does household chores. Television wants their attention at any time and goes to considerable lengths to attract it.

I also read a most disturbing statistic — one that reveals that most fathers spend an average of less than 15 minutes in a 24-hour period in direct contact with their children. Sad. So sad. Kids want parental interest — but they want genuine interest. And none spot insincerity as quickly as the young.

One 16 year old said: "My father is big on visibility. He likes to be seen being a good parent, so he shows up at functions so people will see him. He'll come to a game if one of us is playing, but he's never tossed a ball with us in the yard."

Fortunately, his mother is different. "She shows up at actual stuff, too, but not just to be seen. She's interested in us, whether anyone's watching or not."

Do you want to become involved in your children's activities, but feel a little helpless about how to begin?

If you've been negligent in involving yourself with your children, changing that habit won't be accomplished overnight, but with diligence and patience it can be done.

A friend of mine told me how his parents, although not members of God's Church, gained the respect and admiration of his friends. The key element, he told me, was the time his parents spent with their children.

Like most fathers, his dad was employed full time. But my friend could count on both hands the numbers of times his parents were absent from activities he participated in. These parents' active interest in what their children were doing made a lasting impression on their youngsters.

My friend told me his parents watched countless basketball games, that by the time he got into the game, there were more players than fans in the stadium. And the team won only three games, and lost 17.

Where were you when your son's YOU team played its last game? Or when your daughter's cheerleading squad won the first place trophy? Maybe your son sits on the bench, or the team hasn't won in years. Or maybe basketball just isn't your sport.

Or were you just too busy? Was the extra money earned by working overtime that important? Did you really have to clean the oven? A few less dollars and a few specks of dirt at home, is a small price to pay toward an investment in one of your greatest treasures — your children.

Kids are asked to give up a lot when their parents come into God's Church. I don't know about you, but I'm mighty proud of our young people. In many ways they have to give up as much as their parents do. And the kids aren't converted.

Giving up football, cross country or other sports or not going to the prom with that special guy are bitter pills to swallow, even when you know they are the right decisions. Most of us have been faced with similar situations.

Take an active interest in your children's activities and friends. Take time to play with your kids. This helps to reduce the distance between the generations since it demonstrates your acceptance of your children's world. We should talk to our children, especially to our teens and their friends, read about things that interest them, listen to their music with them — all with an open mind. Give your teens a chance to express their points of view. It's a great opportunity to teach and learn from and about your children. When you differ, why not confess: "I guess we do differ about this, son; maybe if I understood more about it I might change my mind. Is there anything I can read about the subject?" Open up more lines of communication between yourself and your children.

Give the youngsters time to be with their friends and make them welcome when they come to visit. They very much want parents to be interested and enthusiastic if we can do this without engulfing them or seeming to want to control them.

May we be daily reminded that it is a wise father who knows his own children and "like father, like son."

By Rod Matthews

The following are descriptions of the Feast sites in the Caribbean. See article above for Caribbean sites administered by the French Department.

Nassau, Bahamas: Services will take place in the Nassau Beach Hotel on Cable Beach. A Feast in the Bahamas is a family affair, small enough for Feastgoers to get acquainted with one another.

On Jamaican night brethren will sample local food and drinks and enjoy local music.

Costs: $53 a day for double, including taxes and tips. Breakfast and dinner will cost $24 a day per person. For more information write Kingsley Mather, Box N3934, Nassau, Bahamas.

Barbica, Guyana: This year it is hoped to hold the Feast at a new site about 75 miles inland from Georgetown, the capital. The Guyana brethren will spend eight days in a forest area on the banks of the Essequibo River, near the town of Bartica.

The Guyana site is by no means a luxury resort. The Barbica Feast site is recommended only for the hardy and adventurous brethren.

B. Conferences: These grow out of the studies themselves. Once the basic research has been produced and promoted in the public, the foundation could call conferences to discuss the implications of the studies produced.

Regional conferences could be called: one in the U.S.A., one in Britain (again, for the U.K. and Commonwealth) and one in Continental Europe. Appropriately, prestigious venues would be found for each, at great universities or elsewhere. These three regional conferences — to be addressed, if possible, by Mr. Herbert W. Armstrong, and certainly by foundation leaders — would issue their conclusions and recommendations; these would be publicistically disseminated for maximum impact.

Each regional conference could close with an appropriate function (a dinner perhaps) to which national leaders and other prominent persons would be invited under foundation auspices.

The conclusions of the three regional conferences having been obtained, a world meeting might seem appropriate, again to be followed by wide publicity to make known final views and conclusions.

C. Educational follow-up: I stated earlier the need to maximize foundation activity results; an example can be provided in the field of educational follow-up.

The conclusions and recommendations would now be disseminated "downwards" into the grass-roots levels of society: to public officials, community leaders, educators, media representatives and to the population as a whole — by which I mean here specifically the family unit.

Publications, guides, texts, audiovisual and other tools can be developed to disseminate foundation's views; books sympathetic to these views can be encouraged, sought, commissioned and published; newspaper and general magazine articles can be developed and placed; radio-TV interviews and other broadcasts can be promoted, and all other ways explored in which to encourage the reorientation of society with respect to this theme.

D. Interchanges: An interdependent, cooperative exchange of ideas can naturally grow from the educational program I have outlined. All those listed above who receive the foundation's message can be encouraged to provide input to the foundation itself. This would produce an interchange of ideas — "downwards" from the foundation to the people, and "upwards" back to the foundation from those most affected at the grass-roots level.

The "people's view" would, again, allow for further follow-up publications and much publicity, and later conferences could be held to take into account the views of families everywhere.

E. Awards and prizes: A broad program of foundation awards and prizes, at all levels, can be developed. Such awards and prizes could be given to those people doing most to further the foundation's aims and views at the community, state, regional, national and international levels. They could range from certificates and plaques carrying no financial grants to a major, annual, international "Armstrong Prize" to be awarded with all due ceremony and publicity.

F. International exchanges: The regional and international conferences referred to will provide opportunities for people from all nations to gather in fellowship and to develop friendships; I feel, however, that the foundation could ultimately play an important role in encouraging and facilitating exchanges, visits and meetings between people everywhere, especially among those of that generation who in a decade or so will assume leadership positions in the world.

Family exchanges and student and youth exchanges can also be considered, as also sabbaticals for educators, scholars and others.

G. Foundation centers: Conferences and exchanges, as well as foundation work of all kinds, would be facilitated if the foundation obtained suitable premises on both sides of the Atlantic. Individuals and small, select groups could be invited to meet or conduct research there; they could become permanent centers at which cooperative meetings with other organizations of like mind could be held; they could develop into places of considerable prestige in themselves.

This matter I discussed recently with the president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, a man of great reputation and standing in the world of foundations and international relations. His views are not without interest and relevance, and I cite them briefly.

There is a vital need for churches now to play their part, especially in a time when the American people seem increasingly to be turning away from secularism. What very much disturbed him was that international contacts, exchanges and friendships were running down:

The same people were endlessly meeting each other and discussing the same matters; no new people were taking part, and nothing innovative was being undertaken.

The leadership generation of today know each other, and its members have ties of friendship forged in the immediate postwar years of world reconstruction; the next generation of leaders hardly know each other at all, and nothing is being done to bring this new "layer" together.

This situation — fraught with dangerous implications for the future — is due to a number of factors. As the novelty of such exchanges wears off, there is diminishing interest in encouraging them; as funds shrink, they are being increasingly allocated to Latin America by the grant foundations, with adverse effects on the Atlantic community; as the value of the U.S. dollar diminishes and travels become costly, few Americans can afford to visit Europe or stay there long enough to develop friendships with their counterparts.

For all these reasons and others, he felt a center in Washington or New York would be enormously valuable; he would be extremely interested in having the Carnegie Endowment cooperate in such a venture, and he believed other U.S. foundations would feel much the same. Places in which Americans and Europeans could meet in amity and mutual endeavor are badly needed, and could make a real contribution to establishing those ties of friendship that alone can create trust within the international community.

In conclusion

Lengthy though it is, this memorandum remains sketchy. If the premise and program suggested are regarded as having merit, then I suggest a year's feasibility study be carried out. I will be happy to provide thoughts on such a study, how I would propose to carry it out and what it might cost.

Stanley R. Rader

Brethren, this is exceedingly important. It leads me to begin a review of all the projects in which we are participating through the Ambassador International Cultural Foundation. These have been entered into to a limited extent in various parts of the world. However, the above proposal would involve an unlimited expenditure. I am bringing the Advisory Council of Elders into this review.

Those we have entered into are efforts of well-intentioned world leaders. For example, our project with the king of Thailand for the support of portable schools for the education of their mountain people has been very successful. In addition to education of the illiterate, the king told me this project has eliminated 90 percent of the opium production in which these mountaineers were engaged. We have switched them to production of foodstuffs and the marketing of their produce.

In Israel we have excavated in the area of the ancient throne of King David, preparing the way for Christ's THRONE OVER THE EARTH. The Mt. Sinai project has resulted from Prime Minister Menachem Begin GIVING that region back to Egypt, after President Anwar Sadat had, at great personal risk and peril, declared PEACE by going in person to Israel despite the wrath of the Arab world. These men encouraged GOD'S WAY of outflowing LOVE toward neighbor, enabling me to proclaim that as GOD'S WAY to millions. Yet in so doing we did not try to do OURSELVES that which ONLY CHRIST CAN, AND WILL SOON DO! It only helped me proclaim Christ's soon coming to bring us world peace — AS THE "PRINCE OF PEACE."

True, these projects we have supported in a LIMITED manner are the projects of carnal-minded men — and secular activities. The sole value to the Work of God in our participation is in giving leverage to proclaim Christ's Gospel to more millions of people, and to encourage noted examples of world leaders in doing GOD'S WAY NOW — even though the world will not.

I feel that many of our brethren have not fully understood some of these limited secular projects of the AICF. Besides, the AICF has given me a prestige and standing in the eyes of world leaders MAKING POSSIBLE THE SPREADING OF CHRIST'S GOSPEL! We are called to take Christ's message TO the unconverted secular world. Yet we are forbidden to be OF the secular world. That precludes us from entering on such a project as outlined.

We will honor all actual commitments made through the AICF. But we cannot, of course, start a project ourselves in which WE, AS HUMANS for the benefit of coming generations, will try to correct the world's evils, solve its problems and bring in world peace. That is going to require TWO THINGS: 1) Get rid of Satan the Devil, and 2) change human nature. ONLY CHRIST CAN DO THAT.

God has called me to proclaim GOD'S WAY, call the world to REPENT of transgressing that way and proclaim the coming soon (IN THIS GENERATION) of Jesus Christ in supreme POWER and GLORY. Then, with Satan gone, HE will do what we are NOT CALLED TO DO — change human nature. Instead of imbibing Satan's nature of "GET" and SELF-LOVE and VANITY and hostile competition, people will begin to be partakers of THE DIVINE NATURE!

Mr. Rader gives speech at Philippines university

MANILA, Philippines — On a follow-up visit to the Philippines, Stanley Rader delivered the commencement address March 18 at Adamson University, with an enrollment of more than 20,000.

This visit followed Herbert W. Armstrong's previous personal appearances in the Philippines during January, two months earlier. Mr. Armstrong spoke to members of the student body and faculty of Adamson University in a specially convoked assembly. In addition, he addressed some of the Philippines' most distinguished citizens and several ambassadors from other countries as well as luncheon club speeches, press meetings, television interviews and two personal appearances in the Philippine International Convention Center.

In all of Mr. Armstrong's addresses he spoke of the way to world peace, which is Christ's Gospel message to the world about the coming Kingdom of God.

As a result of Mr. Armstrong's January trip, Stanley Rader was invited by the president of the university to speak to 1,425 graduates and their families March 18.

In the midst of the pomp and circumstance, Mr. Rader emphasized that this world's problems will not be solved by learning to work with things. He stated that "we must become acquainted with God and learn to work with our fellowman in unity and harmony."

He further commented as part of his hour-long message that "conflicts, sometimes violent and seemingly irreconcilable, appear between communities, races, social and economic groups, advocates of certain life-styles, businesses, labor and management groups, governments and individual men and women. The types of conflicts range from the ultimate violence, whether sudden or calculated, to the totally nonviolent or even genteel. The intensity level of the conflict is usually governed by many factors, not the least of which is the degree and depth of alienation or frustration on the one hand and the often blind and obstinate resistance to meaningful change on the other.

"You will learn that in the world outside of academia, life is really a series of disappointments, that we never realize all of our expectations. In many ways, you might be tempted to conclude that life isn't very fair.

"But how you handle disappointments — how you deal with the stresses and strains of life and its resulting conflicts — will be one of the most important measures of the success of your education.

"The traitor to humanity is the traitor most accused. Man is more than constitution. Liberty without learning is always a peril. And learning without liberty is always in vain."

The text of Mr. Rader's address was to be published in Philippine newspapers.

On another evening, Mr. Rader honored the winners of the "Plain Truth About the World Tomorrow" essay contest.

He awarded 13,500 pesos ($1,800) in prize money. The ceremony was reported to be a touching and emotional experience.

The evening was concluded with comments by the assistant minister of education, Vedasto Suarez, who represented President Ferdinand Marcos' government at the ceremony. He lauded Mr. Armstrong's valiant efforts in aiding and encouraging the youths of the Philippines.

Rincorn, Puerto Rico: (Spanish-speaking site — no translations) Rincorn is a small town on the west coast of Puerto Rico, about 16 miles north of Mayaguez.

The Hotel Villa Cofresi on the beachfront has a freshwater swimming pool. A phosphorescent bay is about 45 miles from the site. Other places of interest are the Indian Ceremonial Ball Park and the world's largest radio telescope, operated by Cornell University, with a reflector covering 20 acres.

Hamilton, Bermuda: Bermuda is comprised of 150 small islands, of which about 20 are inhabited. The largest seven are connected by bridges and causeways. The total area is 21 square miles. Although far north of tropical latitudes, mild and fairly humid conditions are experienced because of the Gulf Stream, which flows north past the islands.

Activities include swimming, snorkeling, fishing, hiking, golfing, sailing and horseback riding. Beautiful crystal formations can be seen in the Crystal Cave — part of huge natural caverns on the island.
